PREFACE

Each year, it becomes the task of the graduating class to appraise itself in the preface of the Emersonian. Too often, this appraisal has concerned itself with the conquering of the world beyond Beacon Street. Too often, the graduating class has believed itself, by virtue of its four years at Emerson, to be the logical successors to the leaders of that world beyond Beacon Street.

Each year, the graduating class seems to forget that, for the most part, the world selects its leaders from the numberless ranks of followers who have been doing their jobs to the best of their ability.

Let this be our appraisal and our pledge.

We, the graduating class of 1961, realize that we are replacing the formal education of Emerson with the more demanding education of the world beyond Beacon Street. We are aware that our new instructors are not the gentle professors of Emerson, but, rather, the stern taskmasters of the world, interested in performance, not potential.

Knowing this, we pledge ourselves to this new area of learning.

Further, we accept the position of follower, until we have learned to be leaders.

If, then, we are found to be fit for the job of leading, we will accept it with humility toward those who have trained and guided us, and with the understanding which this leadership requires.

David Richard Savoy

TO GROW IS TO LEARN

DEDICATION

The face on this page explains, visually, the thought behind our dedication. It is the countenance of a gentle man. It is a visage which, in every curve and line, states, try to understand. From this man we have come to understand. We have realized that we are not "the be all and end all of existence". Through him we have come to understand that ours is the job of questioning. We cannot simply assume that all of the answers have been given us within these walls and that we need only enter the world, expound what we have been taught and sit back to reap the profits of our sown words. Instead, it is our job to try to understand the successes and failures of those who have gone before us and to measure our successes and failures, not by the size of our bank accounts, but, by what we have been able to add to the sum of the world's knowledge.

Within us is the ability to try to improve or destroy the world. Within us is the power to constructively shape or damnably warp the minds and bodies or our contemporaries and successors.

Therefore, we dedicate not this book, which after all is the efforts of a few, rather, we dedicate our minds and the good they may do in the world, to a man who has helped us to try to understand, Doctor Theodore Thass-Thienneman.

Dear Emersonians:

It is my happy privilege to speak in the name of all of the thousands of members of our College Family in greeting the Class of 1961 and extending congratulations and good wishes to each member as you approach the end of your period of undergraduate study and development.

In the past four years the Class of 1961 has had an increasing influence in our campus life. You have now handed your positions of campus leadership and, as an alumni class, will begin building your influence and leadership in the College as a whole. As the years go on you will assume more responsibility in alumni activities, you will supply members of the Corporation and Board of Trustees, some of you will return to the campus as members of the faculty and administration.

The world of change in which you and your children will live offers a constant and increasing challenge to individual growth and development. Our Double Decade program affirms that we, as a College, are accepting that challenge. We feel that your twentieth reunion will prove that you, as a class and as individuals, have responded nobly to the challenge.

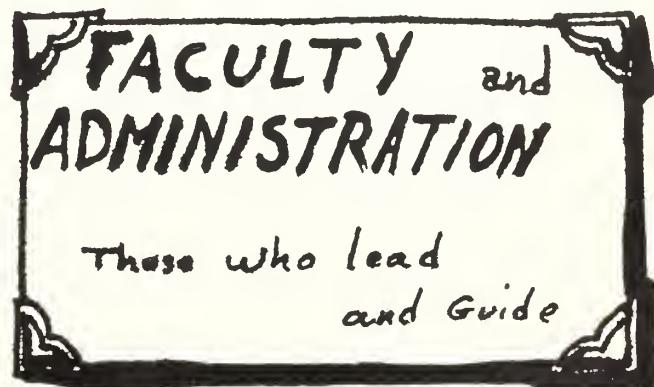

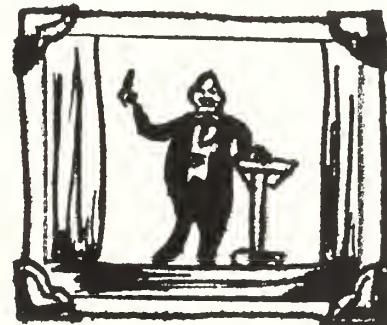

Happiness is something that accompanies the balanced use of your capacity for intellectual, emotional and physical activity. I could wish you no better fortune than to always have worthwhile achievable goals; goals which are within your reach but for which you must stretch to achieve.

But in a society with so many dynamic forces this implies a lifetime of study; study of new ways of doing things, study of the new knowledge of how things work to be provided by the physical and social sciences and, ever more important, study and thought about what is worth doing.

We who remain on campus will miss you and look forward to your letters and return visits. But please remember that even when all of us have left the campus, your College is in a very real sense your home. No matter where you live or how long you live, it is here you will always find those who are interested in you, concerned with your sorrows and rejoicing in your successes and sharing with you many interests and worth while goals.

Sincerely yours,

S. Justus McKinley
S. Justus McKinley,
President.

S. JUSTUS McKINLEY
President of Emerson College

Able, well-directed leadership is the parent of progress. In the past four years, the Senior Class has come to realize and recognize the strong capabilities of S. Justus McKinley, President of Emerson College, as he has guided us and this institution to the status we now hold.

But he will be remembered by the class for more than the increased physical plant. We will remember that he was never so busy that he would not take time out to talk to us as Freshman, to learn our names and to make us feel a part of the "Emerson Family".

We will remember that his door is always open, both at school and at home. His advice and council freely given.

We will remember his abiding interest in all of us; his concern for our growth and development.

We thank him for his loyalty and belief in us, and the Emerson system of education from which we have gained so much in four short years.

We thank him here, secure in the knowledge that we are trained for today and prepared for tomorrow.

DR. RICHARD D. PIERCE
Dean of Emerson College

The task of becoming a teacher, who is more than an instructor, is not a simple problem. The ability to develop incentive where none exists; to stimulate curiosity where there is only slight interest, is not an inborn talent. It comes from years of experience dedicated to the minds of the young.

We find this in Dr. Richard D. Pierce.

Add to the task of teaching, the innumerable duties of the Dean of Emerson College, and you will find a full day in the life of a busy man.

Add to these things a dry New England wit, a wealth of knowledge and a devotion to the Emerson Family, and we find that the Class of 1961 has much for which to thank Dean Richard D. Pierce.

MRS. RUTH SOUTHWICK MAXFIELD
Counsellor of Women

The pictures above these words represent more than individuals. They are vivid illustrations of service above self — a life dedicated to the molding of other individuals so that their lives may be that much more rewarding.

These are our confidants, guides, and most important — our friends.

The very nature of the Emerson system of education demands that it be comprised of individuals, each seeking through the expressiveness of the Speech Arts, his or her individual end.

We have come to Beacon Street, each representing one among the many; and now we leave Beacon Street, still one among the many. We are more strongly bent towards our own end; we are more individual in thought and deed.

Yet, if we pause for a moment of retrospection, we find that within the individual a unity has been molded. Our thoughts are more concise, our objective more clear.

"The play's the thing wherein I'll catch the conscience of the class."

MR. HARRY N. NICKERSON, JR.
Counsellor of Men

And if, during this pause, we look about us, we will realize that the individual has been molded further. We have been shaped into a working member of the Class and the Family. The individual has become a unit. What was action for the one, has now become action for the many.

For Mrs. Ruth Southwick Maxfield and Mr. Harry N. Nickerson, Jr., a word of "thanks" is not enough. We must now prove ourselves worthy of their patience and kindness, their guidance and friendship.

This can not be effected today; it must wait for tomorrow, when, still as individuals, we can work as one among the many for the benefit of all and to the everlasting credit of those to whom we owe so much — Mrs. Ruth Southwick Maxfield and Mr. Harry N. Nickerson, Jr.

"This will never replace I.B.M."

This was an exciting year for Alpha Pi Theta. Two days after registration, the annual Theta Fair was held, followed by pledging. In the month of October, Theta faced the powerful football team of the Brothers of Rho Delta Omega, losing by the slim margin of 7 to 0. Final initiation for eight pledges was completed in the month of November.

Carrying over to the next year, Feb. 8, and 9, 1961, Theta presented "The Theta Minstrel Revue." In the chilly months of late winter and early spring, sports again played an important role for the Fraternity. First to come was the fight for the basketball championship. Theta also joined in the bowling roll-offs that took place between the three Fraternities. To cap an eventful year for the men of Theta, the traditional "Thunder Jug" game was held between the active Brothers and the Alumni of our Fraternity and the Rho Delta Omega Fraternity. As always, a good time was had by all.

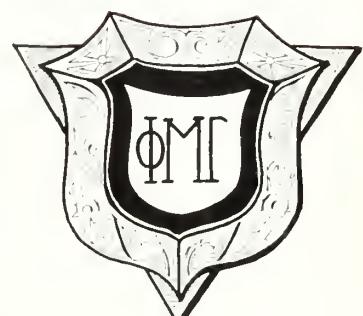

The men of Alpha Pi Theta want to express their warmest good wishes for success to the men who leave Emerson College, especially those from Theta.

To be a well rounded person is a high aim. To learn and grow with each other, as well as with the fine arts, is the goal of the sisters of Phi Mu Gamma National fraternity for women. The sisters of Phi Mu had a very active year advancing our aim and building our sorority into an active and strong organization. On December 1, Phi Mu Gamma presented Emerson Night at the Charles Playhouse. Other events for the first semester included our pledge dinner, and a Christmas party for orphans.

Our main project for the year is the Phi Mu Sorority house. Here we will have room for every sister to live together. Our second semester activities included an all-sorority dinner at the Mitchell's, a dinner party at Carmine's and an evening at the theatre. Our aim, fine arts, was advanced by presenting Jackie Washington Night at Emerson. For two years we have been the recipient of the DiFoglio award presented at graduation.

With all joy must come sorrow. We were deeply saddened by the loss of our President, sister and friend, Joan Hopkins. In the years to come may her ideals be our goals.

Hayes; M. Levin.*

Phi Alpha Tau is a National Communicative Arts-Service fraternity, with a mixture of social events throughout the year. Communicatively, Tau presents the Joseph E. Connor weekend in early spring. Last year's recipient of the award, for outstanding service in the field of communications, was Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra.

The fraternity presented the Annual Christmas carol sing with an open house at the home of Dr. and Mrs. McKinley. Other social events included the Annual Mad Ball (a big success) and the Masquerade Ball with sister sorority Kappa. Sportswise, Tau was busy defending its titles in football and bowling, taking part in other Greek letter events and sponsoring, with Kappa, transportation to and from basketball games.

In service, the fraternity presented a Chicken-in-the-basket dinner for the benefit of the Cerebral Palsy Foundation and served as ushers at school functions.

Kappa Gamma Chi was founded at Emerson in 1902. Of the twenty-seven sisters in the sorority at present, twelve reside at the Kappa House at 75 Marlborough St.

Some of the activities on the "Kappa Kalandar" this year included the annual Kappa Auction, the Homecoming Alumni Tea, a Christmas party held at the sorority house, monthly bake sales (the proceeds of which went to the Emerson College Endowment Fund), the Kappa-Tau dance, and the Kappa Gamma Chi "Spaghetti Throw".

A highlight of the year was the traditional sorority formal dinner-dance, held at the Boston Club on February eighteenth. A graduation breakfast for the Kappa seniors rounded out a busy and profitable year.

The primary aim of Kappa Gamma Chi is the building of ideal womanhood, based on Love, Loyalty, Trust, and Harmony. The secondary aim is the endowment of Emerson College.

Rho Delta Omega, the local professional fraternity for men majoring in the speech fields, began the 1960-61 school year ably led by president Bill McGee. Early in September R.D.O. held its semi-annual book sale and later in the semester presented the highlight of its social calendar — The Dream Girl Ball. This year's Dream Girl was Miss Roberta Jacobs. Rho Delta Omega also participated in inter-fraternal sports by retiring the softball trophy and by winning the football championship.

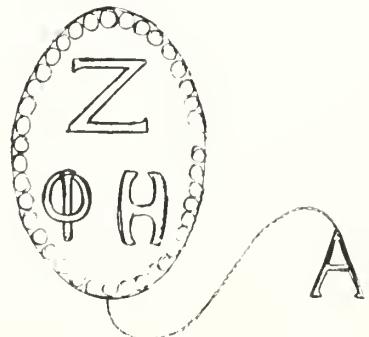

In the second semester Rho Delt held its annual three day reunion which was attended by more than 50% of its alumni membership and which included the traditional "Thunder-jug Game" played with Alpha Pi Theta.

Zeta Phi Eta is a national professional speech arts fraternity for women. Among its purposes are the establishment of a professional philosophy for women in speech, and the encouragement of worthy speech and drama enterprises. Zeta strives toward advancing the speech arts by recording for the blind, and doing publicity for some Emerson theatre productions. Zeta also sponsors various fund raising projects throughout the year such as selling coffee at theatre performances and the annual Work Week held every spring.

BERKELEY BEACON

The Berkeley Beacon, Emerson's monthly newspaper, is the "keeper of the records" of the activities of the entire Emerson College Family. Under the able leadership of Frank Musone, Editor-in-Chief, and his staff of feature writers and reporters, the paper has assimilated and distributed to the student body all news of interest and importance. The advent of the Beacon always creates a high degree of interest among the students and faculty. Such feature articles as the recapitulation of the important social events, the sports page, and the letters to the editor, combine to make this newspaper an important aspect of the Emerson scene.

SCRIBE

Scribe is the Literary Quarterly of Emerson College. It is the creative effort of the undergraduate student body with the guidance and advice of the English Department.

This year for the first time, the Emerson College Singing Choir travelled beyond the confines of the Greater Boston area. In January, they took a trip to Maine and gave a concert at Gorham State Teachers College. Among other pieces, they sang the Vivaldi "Gloria", a very ambitious undertaking which they had earlier presented successfully at the Emerson Christmas Convocation.

The outstanding co-operation and spirit of its members make this year's choir one of the finest in Emerson's history.

1960-61 has been a year of considerable growth for the Psychology Club. The club, in its second year of existence, has more than realized its immediate goals. The membership has trebled. We have brought numerous guest speakers to lecture on various topics within the realm of the organization. In addition to the outside speakers, students with background and exceptional interest in a particular aspect of psychology have given talks and demonstrations. The members of the club have received a broader background in a vital area of liberal arts. Their interest has been stimulated in psychology, and their intellectual growth has been broadened.

WERS is the 18,000 watt "on-the-air" facility of Emerson College. It broadcasts sixty-six hours a week to listeners in the Boston area, as well as the five state New England area. It is staffed mainly by students in the Broadcasting Department. WERS daily programming ranges from music programs such as the popular "Musical Moments", our half hour news and special events program, "The World Today", and "Diversions in Sound", which is broadcast live each Saturday evening from 11:00 PM to 1:30 AM. Past guests on "Diversions" have included Louis Armstrong, Roberta Sherwood, and Jimmy Durante. This past year, WERS brought its listeners extensive election coverage with network tie-ins and at all of the candidate headquarters.

THEATRE ARTS

THE ANNUAL MUSICAL

The department of theatre arts at Emerson is unique in that its goals are several and highly diversified. The student may gear his curriculum toward educational theatre, theatre performance, directing, playwriting, or any phase of the technical aspects of theatre including lighting design, costume design, etc.

These areas, although taught in a classroom, are put into practice many times during the college year. For example, the first major production of the year was Look Homeward Angel under the direction of Mr. Leo Nickole, chairman of the department. The cast, production crew, and production designers were all students.

Every method of theatrical presentation is explored in depth in order to afford each student an opportunity to know and fully understand the theatre of yesterday and how it applies to today's new and experimental styles; i.e., readers' theatre, arena, and formalistic productions with emphasis on the script rather than on scenic and technical elements. Through patient guidance and enlightened growth, the student of the theatre is well prepared to meet any challenge the professional stage may present. The Emerson tradition of "Learning by Doing" manifests itself to the highest refinement in the Department of Theatre Arts.

This year Emerson sponsored the state S.T.E.A.M. convention. Its theme was "Education and the Communicative Arts." From every aspect it was an unparalleled success.

S.T.E.A.M. at Emerson provides members with opportunities for developing personal growth and professional competences, for gaining an understanding of the history, ethics and program of the organized teaching profession, and for participating in cooperative work on the problems of the profession and the community.

Further, it provides experiences which deepen the interest of capable students in teaching as a career, and through higher standards contributes to the balance in teacher supply and demand.

EVENING DIVISION

Mr. John W. Powell of the Fund for Adult Education describes the strength and the weakness of most college and university evening divisions with the statement: "Adult education is everybody's job and nobody's business."

The Emerson Evening Division at Emerson College is the specific business of the Evening Division Advisory Committee which is composed of Emerson administrators, heads of departments, and the director of the Evening Division. In this connection, it is appropriate to state the educational philosophy of the Evening Division: So That All May Learn!

In order to implement this philosophy it is the complex task of the Evening Division to provide for the needs of individual students of differing abilities, interests, backgrounds and goals. Hence the Evening Division curriculum is of necessity re-studied and revised every term.

Emerson's sincere interest in a practical and stimulating approach to the field of continuing education, has led to the development of such dynamic new offerings as: Technical Writing Institute, Management Communication Institute, and Parliamentary Practice Institute.

Consonant with the philosophy so that all may learn, Emerson Evening Division offerings currently range from Elements of Acting to Seminars in Psychology.

"All together now, one, two, three!"

"Practicing via tape recorder!"

"Instructors teach; students learn; and both work at night!"

SUMMER

Perhaps the most comprehensive introduction to the Emerson College Summer Session might be presented in a "Do You Know?" format.

Do You Know? ...

That the Emerson Summer Session is one of the oldest summer study institutions in the nation? Summer term courses were offered at Emerson as early as 1889.

That the Emerson Summer Session has attracted students and teachers from every state in the U.S. and from Canada, China, England, Pakistan, and the Philippines? Emerson's prestige in the field of Communication Arts appears to be international.

That the Emerson Summer Session pioneered in Radio (and late T.V. courses) for teachers? Teachers still look to Emerson for guidance in educational broadcasting.

SESSION

That the Emerson Summer Session was the first fully accredited New England college to offer a specially designed course for high school students (in 1941)? This summer, Emerson offers eight courses for high school students (no college credit, of course).

That the Emerson Summer Session attracts a truly cosmopolitan student body?

A partial listing of students by occupation includes: high school and elementary teachers, professors, actors, salesmen, ministers, rabbis, priests, nuns, housewives, night club chanteuses, models, lawyers, engineers, and doctors.

That the Emerson Summer Session practices what other educational institutions preach about small classes and individual attention (for student growth)?

Graduate and undergraduate students in the summer term are most enthusiastic about their educational experience which is characterized as pleasant and profitable.

"MOMENTS TO REMEMBER"

"Dearie:"

"Dearie do you remember when we sat as the Freshman Class; listening to the Lectures Blast
Dearie, life was wearie in those good old Freshman Days."

"I Would Trust Her"

"Picture this, a Beanie is resting a top of your head;
Here you were, nervous and flighty your face was all red."

"Day By Day"

"Day by day we went along the Sophomore way and day by day, we seemed to grow;
There wasn't any end to Evolution,
The Library Fund became our Resolution;
And day by day we went to Ken's along the way
And say oh say the "Pop's" came up in May."

"Nearness of You"

"Its not the Speech Exam that excites me, nor the English that delights me; oh no;
its just the thought of the Prom."
"As we were gathered in the theatre, our minds could have been clearer;
If we, hadn't played bridge 'till three."

"Our Love is Here to Stay"

"It's very clear, Four years have gone so fast;
It's very clear, our college days have past."
"In time the Banquet and Class Day, Sneak Day and Grad Day will be only memories; but we'll keep thinking of them time and time again."
"It's very clear, our Hearts will never stray;
Even though we go along a different way."
"In years our Sisters and Brothers, and many others, they will always remain;
These Years are here to to Stay."

"Dorm life is a barrel of fun!"

"Doesn't count 'less I'm flat on my back!"

"They had to buy new buildings in the winter!"

"Let's declare a holiday!"

THE SUM TOTAL . . .

"What do you mean nobody's listening?"

"Food was good but the conversation was better!"

"Good for warding off tomatoes, etc."

"Shades of 'phycho'!"

"I dare you to say that again!"

"What do you mean ten cents?"

"A star is born, and the critics stand by!"

"The world is too much with us, late and soon!"

"There we were in Blin-strub's!"

"Eat hearty, girls, for tomorrow we diet!"

"What time is the next floor show?"

"99 44/100 % —"

THE WORK, THE FUN...

"Someone cut a Speech class!"

"Look up to the Queen!"

"Really!"

"I saw a man, he danced with his wife!"

"At least, I have good intentions!"

"The Thinkers!?"

"Who said there was no Santa Claus?"

"Easy on the curves, driver!"

"It's o.k., I took the course!"

"We may even get a sun tan!"

"Behind those doors . . .!"

"Live and let live!"

THE DEEDS WE'VE DONE ...

"Brisk, isn't it?!"

"Happy days are here again!"

"To brighten the study hours."

"Birds of a feather . . ."

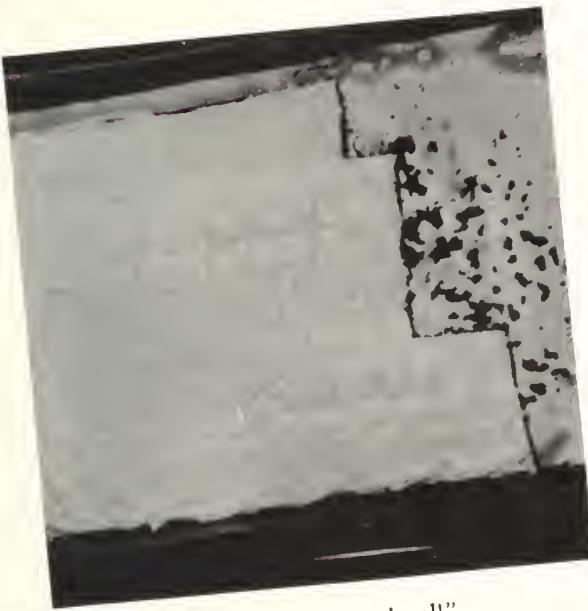

"Home is where the heart is."

"Sign in, mystery guest!"

"The disinterested observer"

"Jane becomes legal!"
